Yang Yang, vice-president of the All-China Youth Federation, addresses a sub-forum on online cultural exchange and sharing during the Fifth World Internet Conference in Wuzhen, Zhejiang province, on Thursday.

In our view the best ways to pursue new knowledge. In this kind of culture, if you are connected. They can help each other and add to the value of popularization. The internet can provide various products and services that are distributed solely over the internet. Print media need to evolve. In several seconds’ time, it can be done. In just several seconds’ time, everything can be connected. Internet technology is the future of cultural heritage. In the digital age, cultural and technological achievements must be harnessed. The younger generation also has to have new thinking. How can you judge. Young people have a responsibility to communicate, to spread culture and to exchange ideas, instead of engaging in cyberbullying.
